We understand that time is of the essence when dealing with water-damaged property. We allow you to safely enter your home again. That's why we quickly assess the damage and start working fast.

We performing a complete evaluation of your property, we let you know exactly what steps need to be taken in order to ensure a complete recovery.

Avoid problems with immediate restoration

The number one concern with water damage is the potential for mold growth. The best way to stop mold from spreading is to address the problem as soon as possible. Mold is a health hazard and needs to be dealt with right away.

By taking care of water damage you potentially keep your replacements costs down for furniture and other household items. Utah Flood Cleanup takes care of any water issues that may reside and give your valuables the best chance at recovery. The sooner we begin repairs, the sooner you can reenter your home or property.

Factors such as harsh weather can indirectly cause water damage by causing pipes to burst and weakening plumbing lines. When a water pipe bursts, it will leak until the water is turned off. If a pipe breaks when you are not home, severe water damage may incur. Waste spillage from an overflowing toilet may also require damage repair services.

Water Damage Repair in Salt Lake City FAQ

If you've just discovered water in your home from a burst pipe or natural disaster, the first thing you should do is turn off your power breakers to eliminate the chance of electrical shock. The second thing you should do is turn off your main water line, especially if you suspect a burst pipe. If it's safe to do so, rescue your personal items from the affected area and take them outside to dry. You can remove standing water, but be careful and go slowly. As soon as possible, file a claim with your insurance company. Then give us a call.
