Fire Damage Restoration

When Utah Cleanup visits your hotel, apartment building, manufacturing facility, restaurant, retail space, or other commercial property after an emergency call, *we'll first investigate the exact cause of damage. It's important to identify the underlying cause of the fire when making repairs to ensure any dangerous conditions are fixed.

Utah Cleanup will then secure your entire property, including boarding up any open or broken windows and covering missing or damaged roof areas to protect your building from precipitation, theft, and vandalism. After this, our damage remediation team will remove and dry any water left behind from fire extinguishing efforts, as well as remove smoke and soot damage and clean all ductwork.

Water Damage Restoration

After inspecting the damage and removing any safety hazards, Utah Flood Cleanup will remove all excess water as quickly as possible from your establishment. Removing water within 48 hours is the key to avoiding damage or risking the growth of potentially harmful mold.

Electrical wiring that has been in contact with floodwater will need to be replaced. Any drywall or flooring that has been saturated with water and can't be immediately dried will need to be replaced as well. Utah Flood Cleanup can work with you to identify important items and immediately remove them from the damaged areas of your business so they can be preserved.

Commercial Mold Removal

When a Utah Cleanup remediation specialist arrives at your business, he or she will perform a building inspection and conduct tests to identify the types of mold that may be present. This allows for a targeted treatment and disinfection process.

Any non-building materials that have been near the mold growth (like food, papers, or office supplies) will first need to be safely removed. Remaining walls, flooring, and other areas subject to mold growth are completely disinfected and the entire building is again inspected to ensure all mold has been eliminated.
